This interactive workshop is designed to provide a guided exploration by engaging participants in productive dialogue about the intersections of interpreting and race; creating steps to meet the needs of diverse communities served by interpreters. Designed to foster a deeper understanding of cultural capital. *Presented in ASL*

Pamela F. Collins, CI, CT, is a doctoral candidate in the Gallaudet University Department of Interpretation and Translation. She has interpreted professionally since 2000, most recently as a staff interpreter for Gallaudet Interpreting Services. She co-authored "The complexities of interpreting" for the International Sign: Linguistic, Usage, and Status Issues. She has presented both nationally and internationally.

Tiffany Hill is a Washington, DC native, born in the district and raised in the Metropolitan Area. Tiffany is an interpreter and an interpreter mentor. She currently works as a trilingual (Spanish) interpreter and as a Freelance Interpreter in the DC area.
